Tip
2

It takes time to find a bargain

Can't be bothered flicking through all the crammed racks? Then its unlikely you're going to walk away with luxury designer goods for just a few dollars. Stamina separates those who leave disappointed and those who can rattle off a list of their best buys.

Tip
1

Shop midweek

Most people clean out their wardrobes and cupboards on weekends, so by the time items are checked and cleared for sale it will be midweek – which means the best stuff is hitting the shelves around Wednesday.

Tip
3

Know your labels and style

One of the things you can pick up on pretty quickly at op shops is that there are quality fashion labels. These can be some of the best clothing investments you will ever make.

Tip
4

Don't just stick to your Age or Gender

Op shop staff have a lot of stock to sort through and not a lot of time, so sometimes clothes can end up in odd places. You should check all sections of a charity shop.

Tip
5

Have some fun!

Op shopping is a lot of fun and is most definitely the cheapest form of retail therapy. These days it's also fun to tell people the story behind your purchase – particularly if they compliment you on your outfit.
